

SEEKING A SUMMER SCICOMM INTERN

Are you an enthusiastic individual interested in air and water quality, multidisciplinary research, and the social determinants of human health? The Paerl Lab at UNC's Institute of Marine Sciences is seeking a science communication intern to join us Summer 2022. The intern will assist Paerl lab researchers in communicating the results and impact of their work on various water bodies across the US.

Primary Duties:

- Writing short articles and social media posts to disseminate information on various water quality and air quality related research projects
- Photography / Filmography of various research activities
- Prepping short stories / visual media to communicate research findings
- Gaining background knowledge in the research being conducted
- Assisting in research tasks where interested
